Further to the Court's December 15, 2023 order, and as extended further to the parties' December 21, 2023 request, the parties have conferred and present their positions and availability below:

Bungie's Position:

Bungie is interested in re-setting the trial as soon as possible, but various scheduling conflicts present challenges. For example, two of Bungie's attorneys who have been working on this case for more than 2.5 years have a case in the Middle District of Florida scheduled for a 5-7 day trial on the April docket, meaning the trial could start on April 1 or any day thereafter. In that case, among other pretrial preparation activities, motions are due on February 9; the pretrial statement is due on March 7 (and apparently requires an in-person meeting of counsel by late February to discuss the issues); and the pretrial conference will take place, in person in court in Tampa, Florida on March 14. Two Bungie employees – one witness and one attorney – also have conflicts in April. Other work, travel, and personal conflicts for trial participants make aligning schedules in May-September similarly difficult. Thus, Bungie proposes the following dates:

- June 17
- June 24
- August 12
- August 26
- September 16

Defendants' Position:

As this case has taken, and continues to take a terrible toll on Defendants' interests and financial condition, Defendants are interested in securing the earliest possible trial date.

Defendants are available for any trial date beginning February 29, 2024 or thereafter, with the exceptions of May 6-10, May 27-31, and September 1-30, 2024.
